

CV Case Studies

Case Study 1:

Sarah Brown is 18 years of age and has recently finished college after studying English, Drama and History A-Levels. Sarah is thinking about going into teaching but is not sure if that is the right move for her yet. She is considering getting a job as a teaching assistant at a primary school to gain some experience. In her spare time Sarah is a brownie leader and regularly attends an amateur dramatic group.

Case Study 2:

Derek Harris is 45 years of age and has recently been made redundant from his job as a telephone engineer with a major communications company. He does not have any formal qualifications but does hold certificates in health and safety, COSHH and first aid. He is currently applying for jobs within a similar industry but is aiming for a management position. In his spare time, he is a season ticket holder for Derby County FC, and he plays 5-a-side with his pub team.

Case Study 3:

Michelle Duke is 31 years of age and has 3 children. Michelle left work aged 22 and has since spent her time raising her family. Now that the children are growing up Michelle feels that she would love to go back to work and wants to go into paediatric nursing. She has GCSE's and A-levels in all the sciences and has a degree in Health and Social Care. In her spare time, she enjoys cross-stitch and pottery.

Case Study 4:

Richard Jones is 24 years old and is currently employed by a major supermarket chain. He has been in employment with them since he was 16 and has worked his way from being a Weekend Assistant on the delicatessen to being a full time Checkout Supervisor. Richard has been thinking about progressing with the company and the position of Assistant Store Manager has come up in the neighbouring town. Richard has 7 GCSE's including Maths and English and has a BTEC National Diploma in Business Marketing. In his spare time Richard goes clubbing and plays on his X-Box.
